Desmalions, the Prefect of Police, was not yet back at the office. His private secretary laid on the desk a bundle of letters and reports which he had annotated for his chief, rang the bell and said to the messenger who entered by the main door: Monsieur le Prefet has sent for a number of people to see him at five o clock. Here are their names. Show them into separate waiting-rooms, so that they can t communicate with one another, and let me have their cards when they come. The messenger went out. The secretary was turning toward the small door that led to his room, when the main door opened once more and admitted a man who stopped and leaned swaying over the back of a chair. Why, it s you, Verot! said the secretary. But what s happened? What s the matter? Inspector Verot was a very stout, powerfully built man, with a big neck and shoulders and a florid complexion. He had obviously been upset by some violent excitement, for his face, streaked with red veins and usually so apoplectic, seemed almost pale.
